Hello Graduate Students!

Welcome to Summer 2012. We would like to welcome new students to our program who will begin their program with us in July. We are pleased to welcome students from almost every province and territory in Canada which gives wonderful diversity to our program. We have two new cohorts beginning this summer. The third French Immersion Resource Cohort is preparing teachers to provide resource support for French Immersion students in the province. Thanks to Dr. Irene Bernard for coordinating these cohorts! Also welcome to the second Leadership cohort from the Halifax Regional School Board. We wish to congratulate graduate students in the Tri-county Physical Education cohort and the Tri-county Leadership cohort who are also finishing up their course work in the near future. We would like to extend our gratitude to both Dr. Andrew Foran and Dr. Dan Robinson for their leadership with the Tri-county Physical Education Cohort and also, Dr. Jeff Orr for providing leadership in the Tri-County Leadership cohort!

Coming on campus for a residential experience in the month of July is a key feature of our graduate program. While it presents challenges for many students to come to campus we have been told time and time again by our graduate students that this face-to-face experience helps them build community with other graduate students, most of whom they will continue to study with in online courses over their program of study. Many students feel the face-to-face experience helped them build their confidence and allowed them to transition well into their Masters program.

Congratulations to Rozina Ahmad whose thesis entitled “Visual Journals, Artistic Processes and Cross Curricular Connections: An Arts- Informed Inquiry” won the 2012 ARTS SIG Graduate Award which was awarded at CSSE in Waterloo in May! Dr. Matthew Meyer was Rozina’s supervisor.

ABSTRACT: The trend for art making among youth today comes from a visual culture that struggles to fit traditional definitions of art. Art education programs need to include broader notions of artistic development (Kindler, 2003). Kindler stated, the importance of visual culture in the educational world can be seen in the art created by today’s children, often through cartoon or manga drawings. This type of art, says Kindler, is created as a result of how children experience the world through media and is often disregarded as art. It is thought to be immature and simplistic yet, as Kindler points out, there must be a need for it, or children would not be engaging in this type of art making. She suggests children have a need to represent, communicate, and share ideas and thoughts significant to them. This need is what guides their desire to create.

Congratulations: Sherry Neville MacLean for correctly answering our Confusion Square question.
